Exciting challenges await on the path to realizing our vision. We are therefore seeking

Head Project Portfolio Management (PPM)

Root

Your tasks

In this highly influential position you lead the (senior) project managers and the Project Management Office (PMO) staff. In this context you are responsible for the definition, planning and supervision of the project portfolio including projects for product development, pipeline extension, manufacturing capacity and basic research. You are further accountable for the reporting of portfolio status into executive management, the moderation of the monthly portfolio steering committee as well as for the PPM associated processes – such as project management, medical device development, design controls and product risk management.

Your qualifications

Beside your advanced education (e.g. bachelor, master, dipl. Ing.) in life science, pharma technology or equivalent, you are experienced in multi-project or portfolio management as well as in medical device development, design controls and product risk management. You have a working knowledge of international regulatory requirements for medical devices. As a strong self-starter with pioneering spirit, willingness to shape your area of responsibility you are resilient and able to drive toward company objectives. You have strong interdisciplinary communication-skills; fluent in English (written and spoken). German is an advantage.

Geistlich Pharma is a family-run Swiss company and a longstanding global leader in regenerative dentistry. We have a long tradition of pioneering attitudes that place the focus on employees. These employees are dedicated to the spirit that drives our company to excel: a passion for regeneration. This is the origin of our innovative medical products that reconstruct bones, cartilage and soft tissue. Our motivated team looks forward to working with you in a modern, dynamic environment with international flair.
